Wanting to grow her business, one of our distributors researched the healthcare market¹ and decided it would be a good fit for her. She set up meetings at a local healthcare system with human resources, nursing administrators, and the employee wellness committee².

Armed with the knowledge that over half the healthcare workforce is facing issues³ with burnout, she prepared a presentation that addressed employee morale³. She had learned that nearly 80% of the healthcare workforce is female⁴, so she kept that in mind when creating her virtuals.

In each meeting, she was sure to present solutions at various price points⁵ and wove in examples of successful projects⁶ she had worked on with her existing clients. She left behind a memorable business card – a Souvenir® Sticky Note™ 4" x 3" Pad imprinted with her business information⁷ – for each person she met with.

In the end, each of the three groups she met with placed an order, including the human resources department, who gave each employee two Koozie® britePix® Can Coolers to celebrate Random Acts of Kindness Day – one for them to enjoy and one for them to give to someone else to keep the spirit of the day alive.

Employees were surprised and uplifted by the kindness campaign. A visiting pharmaceutical rep⁸ loved the positive energy generated and asked for the distributor's name so they could recreate the event in their own company.

To celebrate its first anniversary and as a way to say “Thank you for helping us to grow,” organizers of a weekly farmers market gave away 50 Koozie® Zippered Insulated Grocery Totes to customers each week for a month. The bags were a big hit, as customers appreciated having a single item that they could use to keep their food stored and fresh until they got home. The giveaway proved to be a great idea as many returning customers continued to bring the bags with them to the market each week, and the promotion drew many new customers, as well.
